Newsletter Number 5

Our first PEDAGOGICAL COACHING workshop is on this Friday 14th of June (Registration is open until 12th of June). With the creation of this program we have now created a suite of professional learning programs that align and complements Teach Like a Champion. It has been great to see and work with schools who have created a Pedagogical Framework / Lesson Structure / Sequence. These frameworks have Teach like a Champion embedded as the micro skills to bring the Pedagogy to Life. See our cycle below of our professional learning suite that embeds and supports the implementation and development of a Cycle of High-Quality Teaching and Learning.

Quote of the Month

Peps McCrea – from the book Motivated teacher

“Greatest Influence on motivation and behaviour is the individuals perception of the shared norms of peers”

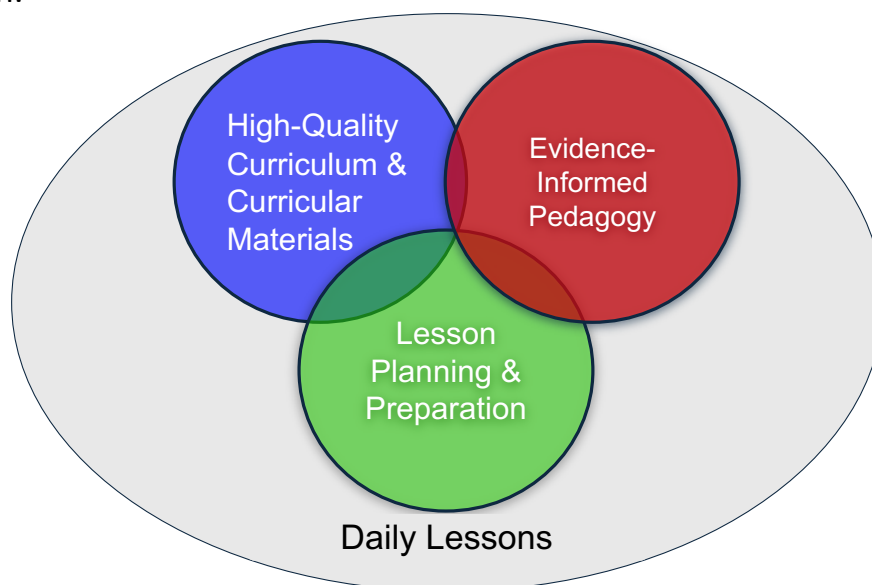

Teachers Working Memory

To build off previous newsletters on Check For Understanding, please find a link below to Doug Lemovs blog on Managing your own working memory. The blog has two outstanding videos of teacher Julia and how she uses her monitoring key to check students work during her Check For Understanding laps (each lap she specifically looks for one key element of learning).

Essentials to Learning

Schools that have High Quality Curriculum / Curricular Materials, Evidence Informed Pedagogy and Effective Lesson Planning (WHAT) and Preparation (HOW) are our most successful schools. However, to realize their full potential leaders need to provide teachers with a Lesson Structure with all three key elements so there is a clear instructional sequence of a typical lesson.

On the link below you can learn more about Lesson Preparation the HOW.

Research / Evidence

Most people don't know that Doug Lemov has his own podcast called Sweat the Technique, it has some great episodes on working memory, belonging and a lot more. Check it out in the link below.
